CONTENT AND OPERATION

Fraud-reporting system

The bill requires the Auditor of State to establish and maintain a system for the reporting of fraud, including misuse and misappropriation of public money, by any public office or public official. The system must allow Ohio residents and public employees to make anonymous complaints through a toll-free telephone number, the Auditor of State's web site, or the U.S. mail to the Auditor of State's office. The Auditor of State must review all complaints in a timely manner. Any complaint resulting in an audit report will be a public record upon the issuance of the audit report when the certified copies of the audit report are filed, subject to any applicable privileges, including, but not limited to, the attorney-client privilege.

* This analysis was prepared before the report of the Senate State and Local Government and Veterans Affairs Committee appeared in the Senate Journal. Note that the list of co-sponsors and the legislative history may be incomplete.

A public office must provide information about the fraud-reporting system and the means of reporting fraud to each new employee at the time of employment. Each new employee must confirm receipt of the information within 30 days after beginning employment. The Auditor of State is required to provide a model form on the Auditor of State's web site to be printed and used by new public employees to sign and verify their receipt of this information. The Auditor of State must confirm, when conducting an audit of a public office, that the new employees have been provided the required information.

Additionally, on the effective date of the bill, each public office must make all of its employees aware of the fraud-reporting system. (R.C. 117.103.)

Whistle-blower protection for reporting

The bill extends the current whistle-blower protections applicable to employees in the classified or unclassified civil service to those employees who file a complaint with the Auditor of State's fraud-reporting system. (R.C. 124.341.) Under this provision, if a classified or unclassified employee becomes aware in the course of employment of a violation of state or federal statutes, rules, or regulations or of the misuse of public resources, and reports it to a supervisor, appointing authority, or the office of internal auditing, and under the bill to the Auditor of State's fraud-reporting system, the employee is protected against specified retaliatory or disciplinary actions by an officer or other employee. If disciplinary or retaliatory action is taken against an employee making a report or filing a complaint, the employee is afforded an opportunity to file an appeal with the State Personnel Board of Review.
