- The cities or villages containing designated memorial highways entirely within their borders are responsible for the full cost of any signage for the memorial highways designated within their boundaries. Overall, these costs are minimal.

Detailed Fiscal Analysis

New memorial highways

The bill designates 11 new memorial highways on portions of various state routes, United States highways, and interstate highways throughout Ohio. The following table summarizes these highways in the order that they appear in the bill, including the location of the highway and the entity responsible for paying any signage costs.

The cost of signage to mark the highways is paid either by the Ohio Department of Transportation (ODOT) or the municipal corporation through which the roadway passes, pursuant to ODOT's Traffic Engineering Manual.¹ In most cases above, ODOT will be responsible for the costs of installing signs to mark the designated roads. In cases where municipal corporations contain designated memorial highways entirely within their boundaries, the municipalities would be responsible for reimbursing ODOT for all signage costs. In other cases, where only a portion of a designated memorial highway passes through a municipal corporation, ODOT and the involved municipalities may share the costs, as those designated highways are not entirely contained within municipal boundaries.

Overall, ODOT and the associated municipalities would incur no more than minimal costs to install signs on each of the designated memorial highways in the bill. According to ODOT, the cost to manufacture and install a single set of flatsheet signs at one location is approximately $350 to $400 per sign, depending on sign size and equipment needed. Once a set of signs is installed, there are typically no maintenance costs unless the signs are damaged. Signs are usually in need of replacement every 12 to 15 years. When a highway or bridge is designated as a memorial, ODOT's policy is to install a marker in a rest area, scenic overlook, recreational area, or other appropriate location. If this is not practical, a marker is installed along the highway or near the bridge instead. For highways designated in two directions, two markers are usually installed, one in each direction at each location.

Change to existing memorial highway

The bill amends the name of an existing memorial highway to reflect a change in rank. Under the bill, the Army Private Keith Nepesa Memorial Highway is renamed to the Army Corporal Keith Nepesa Memorial Highway. The cost of any alterations to signage resulting from this change will be negligible.

¹ Under ODOT's Traffic Engineering Manual, for memorial highways designated in Chapter 5533. of the Revised Code, municipalities that opt to install signs designating memorial highways are responsible for reimbursing ODOT for those signage costs on United States routes and state routes within their borders, while ODOT covers the costs of memorial highway signs outside municipal borders and interstate highways within municipal borders.
